DESIGN AND FUNCTIONALITY

At first, the fluted bezel design had a specific role: it served to screw the bezel to the case ensuring the tightness of the watch. Besides, it was identical to the ribbed bottom of the box, screwed to it for the same reason by specific tools.

Over time, the striation became a purely aesthetic element, a genuine hallmark of high-end watches. At present, the striation is a mark of distinction and is available on gold models.
